TABLE MOUNTAIN CABLEWAY TURNS 95

The Table Mountain Aerial Cableway celebrates 95 years of providing unforgettable experiences. Since its opening in 1929, the Cableway has undergone three major upgrades, becoming a must-see attraction in Cape Town. Initially proposed as a railway in the 1870s, the project evolved into a cableway in 1926, thanks to Norwegian engineer Trygve Stromsoe. Over the years, it has welcomed millions of visitors, including celebrities like Oprah Winfrey, Arnold Schwarzenegger, and Sir Edmund Hillary. Today, the Cableway remains a beloved icon, transporting around a million visitors annually, with many more adventures on the horizon.

SUN CITY ICON REBORN

Sun City's legendary hotel is being revitalised, blending rich Tswana culture with modern luxury. Originally opened in 1979, the iconic Sun City Hotel captured South Africa's imagination and later expanded with The Cascades, The Cabanas, and The Palace. Now, with an upgrade led by Blacksmith Interior Inspiration, the hotel will feature bespoke interiors paying homage to its unique surroundings. "The design combines comfort with craft," says director Ryan Ilgner, highlighting details like Tswana-inspired woven patterns, warm savannah tones, and Pilanesberg-themed artwork. The first refreshed rooms opened in time for the Nedbank Golf Challenge that took place in November 2024, inviting guests into an authentic African experience.
